

Line snaps

A severe thunderstorm Wednesday evening plunged 4,527 homes and businesses in the Minden and Kinmount areas into darkness. The storm which roared through the area at approximately eight o'clock dumped sheets of rain on the area and lit up the sky with lightning.

It was one of the storm-generated lightning bolts which caused the 5 hour long blackout. The lightning struck a main 44,000 feeder line approximately one and a half miles northeast of Minden off the Horseshoe Lake Road.

The damage from the lightning was severe with ten large insulators destroyed, cross arms split and sheared off and wires cut. All the damage occurred in one location.

Hydro repairmen were hampered by the relatively remote location of the break. Tramping through the soaking bush, the crew carried in new insulators, replacement crossbars and the equipment needed to repair the split wires. Portable lights were also set up at the site of the break to assist the workmen in completing the repairs.

The power was restored approximately five hours after the break occurred. A Hydro official said some 500 calls were received at the local office regarding the power outage.

Tuesday blackout

A second power break early Tuesday morning of this week may have resulted in a number of area students being late on the first day of school.

The power to a section of Minden was cut off around 5:30 a.m. when an anchor line broke loose from its rock base causing conductors to short out. The outage affected a part of Minden and Highway 35 south of the village. 300 customers were without power for an hour and a half.

Eric Devaney of the United States keeps a sharp eye on the course ahead as he threads his way through the gates during the Pan-American Slalom Championships. The event drew participants from eight countries and was held Saturday at Minden Wild Water Preserve. A competition of a different class takes place this weekend as the open canoe championship will be held at the Preserve.

Schools ready for returning students

Labour Day has come and gone, the first frosts have touched area gardens and the seasonal residents have streamed back to the city. Summer is over and school is back in session.

Area teachers and principals greeted the returning students on Tuesday morning.

In a survey of schools in the county, The Times discovered that the introduction of new programs and major changes in the schools could be limited. Most principals were expecting the continuation of existing programs, with some modification, but no major changes are foreseen in the coming year.

The dearth of new programs for the new session could be indicative of the present economic situation and the realization that financial resources may not be available to support them. As well, programs introduced in previous years are now being consolidated into the schools' regular schedule.

However, new programs or not, the doors swung open Tuesday morning to welcome the returning students. Here is what the youngsters will find at area schools.

HHSS

Students at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School in Haliburton Village will be able to take a new art program this year. The program, which will take place in the school, will be taught by Dave Stephenson.

HHSS principal Dale Robinson noted that students formerly studied art at the Rail's End Gallery under the direction of the former curator, Lucinda St. Pierre. The classes were held after regular school hours and the students were enrolled in a provincial correspondence course.

The new course this year will be part of the regular curriculum. "We have had an excellent response to the program," Robinson commented. "I have had a feeling that the art side of our program at HHSS needed to be revitalized, that more attention should be paid to it. Now students who wish to pursue a career in art or an art related career will be able to get a grounding at this level."

The high school computer education program has also been expanded to include three classes. Twelve micro-computers have been installed during the summer months and a special computer room has been established for the classes. "I think we are offering a computer program as good as any in a high school in Ontario," the principal commented.

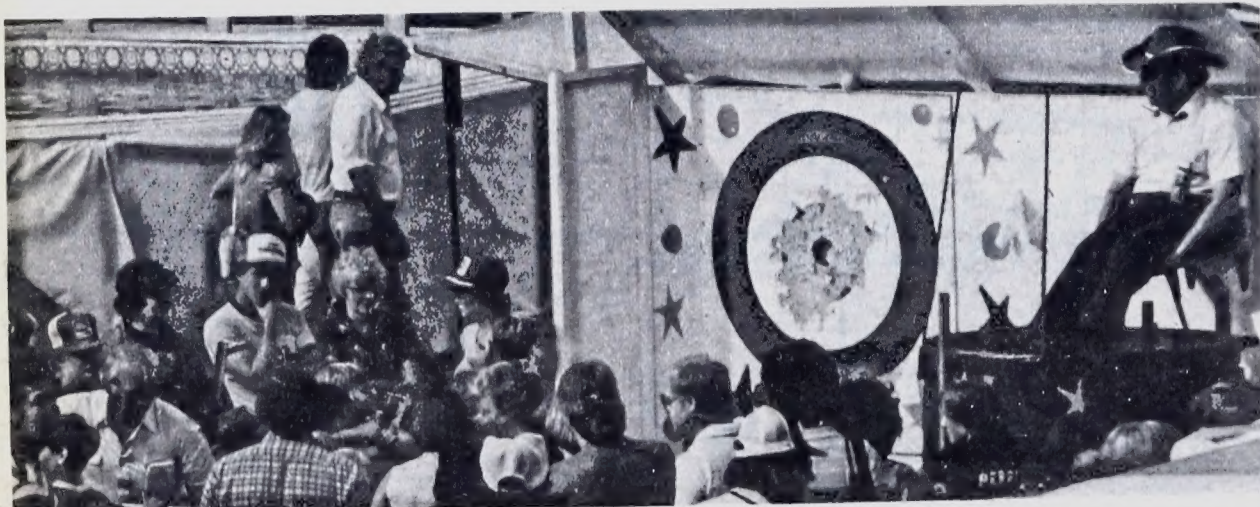

The needs of special students at the high school is also being recognized. A program which started last year is being expanded to include more students. The co-operative work and education program for vocational students is being expanded from grade nine to ten.

Students returning to HHSS will notice some alterations in the timetable. The entire school will now have a single lunch period of 65 minutes. Previously lunch periods were staggered through the noon hour. "The new schedule will mean four 40 minute periods in the morning and afternoon. During the common lunch period we hope to develop an intramural sports program. Students will also be able to take part in clubs and other activities rather than waiting for a time after school," Robinson commented.

Dixie Lee wins ladies championship

The Minden Dixie Lee Seniors of the Haliburton County Ladies Soft Ball League have won the league championship. The game was played Tuesday evening at the Haliburton ball diamond.

The Dixie Lee team defeated Haliburton 13-9 to claim the best of seven final series in six games.

The Tuesday night game followed two attempts last week to wrap up the series. A Wednesday night contest in Haliburton was rained out, as was a Thursday game.

A complete report on the Minden win will appear in next week's edition of The Times.

allow high school students to begin classes two weeks earlier. The board, students and staff agreed to the change to allow students out two weeks earlier in the summer. Many of the students in the Rainy River High School are employed in lodges and resorts in the area. It was suggested by Rainy River officials that a similar schedule might be established for Haliburton students.

However, HHSS principal Dale Robinson has rejected the idea. He noted that the tourist season begins earlier in northern Ontario and that the present schedule seems to suit the local students and employers well.

Robinson expects the enrolment to be down slightly at the high school this year. Last year there were 620 students at HHSS, up from 600 the year before. However, this year he foresees a student population of approximately 580. "It is hard to predict because of families moving in and out of the area," he commented. "But, the trend is toward reduced student numbers unless there is a major new industry in the area." Robinson suggested that the high school population would slowly drop over the next five years to approximately 525.

There are 38.5 teachers on staff at the high school this year.

Archie Stouffer

The principal of Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden is expecting this year's student population to be approximately 400, perhaps more. Mr. Stuart Baker noted that the number will be close to last year's total.

This year the school will welcome two classes of kindergarten students, with 20 youngsters in each class.

There will be 24 staff members at the school, which includes four teachers working on a half-time basis.

According to the principal, the program at Archie Stouffer will remain much the same as last year. "We will be continuing our co-ed classes in home economics and industrial arts at the grade six level," Baker said. "The program was well received last year so it will be continued again this year."

The program was designed to give female students an opportunity to learn some basic home repair techniques while the boys will be taught nutrition and meal preparation. Baker noted that only about 10% of all Ontario schools offer co-ed courses.

Victoria Street

Students at Victoria Street School in Haliburton will have two new facilities this year. Since the grade three classes were transferred from Victoria Street to the senior elementary school, two portable classrooms have become available for the use of all students in the school.

"We will be using one as a gymnasium, while the other portable has been turned into a library-resource centre," Principal Ruth Gorrie said. "We will be developing some programs to utilize these extra facilities."

Previously the students would have physical education in their classes, hallways or on the playground. Library facilities were located at the back of a classroom.

Victoria Street School, which has classes from kindergarten to grade two, has a student population of approximately 150 in six classes. There are six teachers plus the principal.

Planned for early this school year is the annual "meet the teachers night", at which time the parents will have an opportunity to become acquainted with the teachers who will be instructing at the school.

HHSES

The senior elementary school in Haliburton is beginning its second decade this year. "It hardly seems like ten years have gone by since we opened the doors here," principal Doug Devolin commented.

The program at the school will continue much the same as last year, according to the principal. He noted that the staff of 29, three of whom are serving on a half-time basis, will continue to build on the successful programs of the past.

The biggest change this year will be the addition of three grade three classes transferred to the school from Victoria Street School in Haliburton. The move followed a sometimes acrimonious debate which saw parents voicing strong objections to the move at special meetings of the board of education.

Playground equipment suitable for the younger students has arrived at the school and will be installed shortly. As well, the special education program has been expanded to include the grade three students. Speech and occupations therapy will also be taught at the school.

Three teachers have been added to the staff because of the increase in students.

A program for gifted students will also be continuing at the school.

The addition of the grade three classes at HHSES will mean the student population at the school will also be up. Devolin expects close to 475 youngsters will be attending the school this year compared to 425 last year.

Dorset

With a student population of 22, the kindergarten to grade four school in Dorset is one of the smallest in the county. But that doesn't mean the school and community is lacking in enthusiasm for the facility.

The Dorset school was almost closed by the Haliburton County Board of Education several years ago. However, through persistent lobbying by the parents, the elementary grades were retained at the school while the senior students were taken by bus to the school in Dwight.

There are two classes at the school according to Ruth McLennan, the principal.

The students will be taking a French program this year at all grade levels. The principal noted that since the students will advance to senior grades in the Muskoka system, and since French is being taught in that system, it was necessary to introduce the subject in Dorset. It is more convenient for the board of education in Haliburton County to 'purchase' education from the Muskoka board than to have the students taken by bus to the school in Minden or Haliburton.

According to McLennan, the students will also be taking part in a swim program which proved successful last year. The youngsters are taken to Hidden Valley resort near Huntsville for the lessons. "The program was very well received last year and many of the children learned to swim."

The Dorset school also

Trustees approve increase

Haliburton County Board of Education trustees elected in this November's vote will be receiving an increase in their honoraria. The increase was approved by the present board at the August 24 meeting.

According to board chairman Cheryl Murdoch, the stipend has been increased from $200 per month to $250 per month for each trustee. The new rate will take effect when the new board assumes their responsibilities in December.

The current rate of $200 per month has been in effect since 1974.

welcomes a number of senior citizens every day to help with individual instruction of students. The seniors carry out reading programs, math drills or other necessary work with the students. The involvement of the seniors is 'repaid' at the end of the school year when the students present a special musical program for their senior helpers. "Both the students and the seniors find the program very rewarding," McLennan commented.

Gooderham

The enrolment at the Gooderham Public School will be the same as last year, according to principal Christina Bailey.

Thirty students will be attending the grade one to four program this year, while three students are being welcomed to the kindergarten class. Two teachers will be in charge of the program at the school.

Bailey noted there would not be any major changes in the program during the coming year.

Auto strikes tree

Melvyn Ridgewell, 18 of Eagle Lake, lost control of his 1974 Mercury on a curve and struck a tree doing $1500 damage to the vehicle early Monday morning. Ridgewell was admitted to Haliburton Hospital. His passengers, Diana Ptolemy, 17, of Milton, Suzanne Blondin, 16 of Oshawa and Christopher Ward, 15 of R. R. 2, Haliburton all received minor injuries.

The incident was investigated by PC Mike Legge.

damage, apparently from airguns, was reported by Jack Neville of Northern Transit Ltd.

Sign of the times?

Last Monday, August 30, a Schomberg area man reported he gave a lift to 5 youths who had experienced car trouble on Hwy. 118, west of Carnarvon. He later found they had relieved him of several meat pies which had been kept in a cooler in his back seat.

Early Sunday morning,

September 5, a Peterborough area man, camping at a Minden area campground, reported a 2 lb. sirloin steak, a brown egg, large, 4 oz. of mayonnaise and an armload of firewood had disappeared from his campsite overnight.

Other unusual thefts reported from throughout the County in the past week include a 27' banner "Canadian National Hill Climbing Championships", a wooden sign "Funeral Parking" and a small wooden sign "Yardley".

Domm guest speaker

The newly formed Victoria-Haliburton Progressive Conservative Youth Association will be hosting a dinner meeting September 16 featuring Bill Domm, M.P. for Peterborough, as guest speaker. He has been the P.C. caucus spokesman on the subject of metric conversion.

The P.C. Party, although not trying to ban the use of metric, has strongly opposed the manner in which it has been forced upon the Canadian public. Domm has led the party's fight against this forced implementation.

The dinner is set to start at 6:30 p.m. at I.E. Weldon Secondary School, in Lindsay.

Reach for the sky

The successful flight of the Seawind aircraft, as reported opposite, makes a milestone in a lengthy struggle by the Creelman brothers, Leonard and Rodger, to lift an idea from the drawing board. After years of design work, construction, failure and frustration, success has finally come to them.

They are to be congratulated for their persistence which has finally paid off. This airplane is a beautiful looking craft that is destined to change the way the aviation world regards amphibian aircraft.

The Seawind design has eliminated the weighty and energy-consuming pontoon undercarriage, given a float plane a sleek look it deserves and placed an amphibian aircraft in kit form, within the reach of the home builder. The new aircraft, designed and built in Haliburton, is a striking bird, its long, strong tail thrusting skyward. The wing tips dip with the elegant outline of a gull in flight.

It is pretty, energy efficient and breaks new ground in a number of design characteristics.

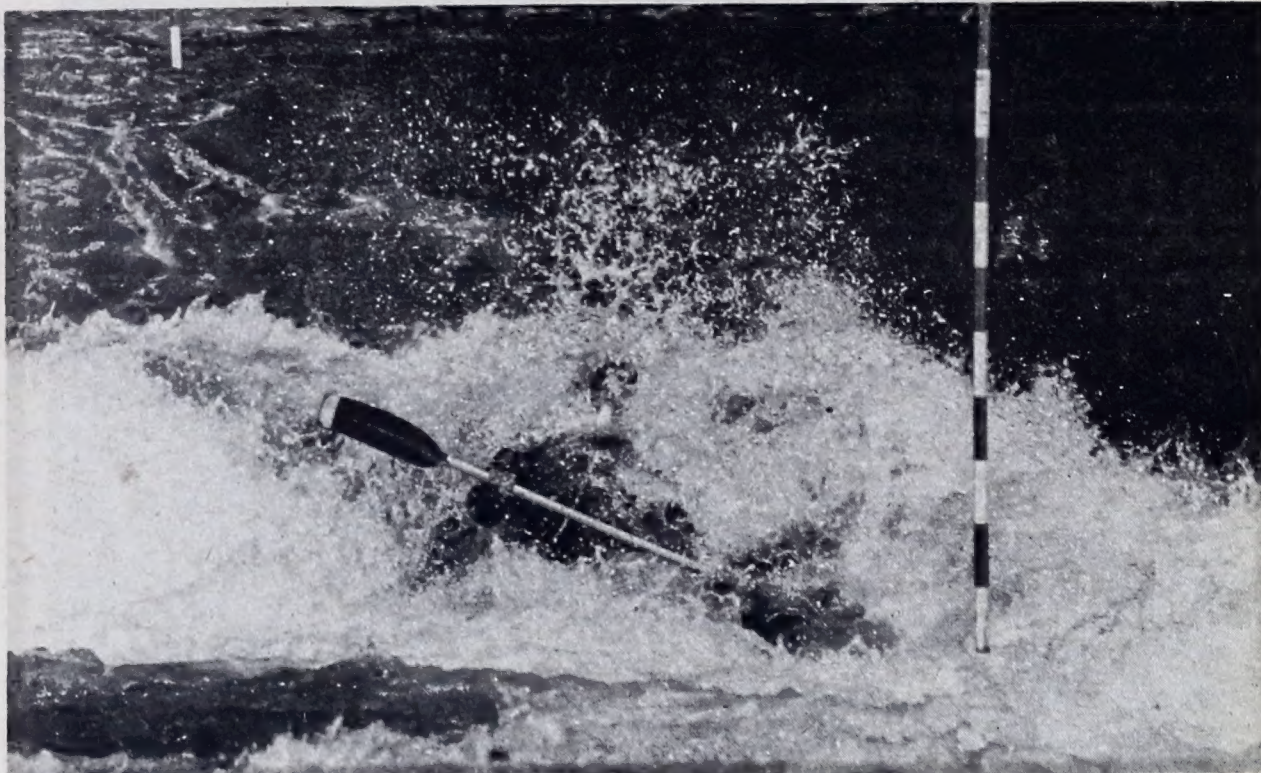

Having followed the efforts of the Creelmans to get the Seawind aloft, it was gratifying Saturday to watch the craft slowly gain speed on the Bracebridge runway, until it finally lifted free of gravity's pull. We congratulate the Creelmans and their crew on the success they have finally achieved.

Trudeau twists the knife

- by Bill Scott, M.P. -

Our Prime Minister's office recently announced that he was cancelling a scheduled tour of the Far East to devote his time to the economy.

The statement, on the face of it, sounds admirable. However, one must ask why he had planned the tour in the first place. It would have cost us untold numbers of dollars, as it was an official state tour. He has already had his holidays, remember his exciting and eventful tour of western Canada in the Governor General's private rail car surrounded by RCMP. So I guess we should thank him for his contribution to the saving of our economy by cancelling his tour. The sad fact is that this is probably the only good thing his staying home will accomplish.

Mr. Trudeau demonstrated how willing he is to really do something about the economy by his reaction to the proposals the Premiers put forward at the recent Halifax Premier's meeting. He and Mr. MacEachen have refused to even discuss their proposals or use them as a starting point at a First Ministers Conference on the economy.

Simultaneously, with the announced cancellation of the tour, the Prime Minister's office announced that this did not mean that a conference on the economy would be convened as requested by the Premiers. The Finance Minister instead said that they were sticking to their program and would not listen to anyone. At the same time he said that it would be the provinces fault if the federal program does not work because they are not following it rigidly, even though they were not consulted before its implementation. Mr. Trudeau knew what he was saying when he stated that co-operative federalism is dead in Canada. He should know, he stabbed it in the back and continues to twist the knife.

It is difficult to imagine that, at a time when bankruptcies in Canada are up 40% this year and 62% over two years ago and unemployment, even seasonally adjusted, is at a record 11.8%, our federal government refuses to listen to suggestions from the provinces. How can they expect provincial co-operation when their concerns are not even listened to. Accepting the fact that all decisions are made on a political basis in the Prime Minister's office, it is hard to rationalize the one-tracked attitude especially when the polls tell us that he is no longer the most popular politician in the country.

His suggested devotion of time to the economy will most likely take the form of working on a Cabinet shuffle and on the three Ontario by-elections announced for October 12. Neither of these events will have a positive economic effect. The Liberals have no new saviour waiting for a Cabinet appointment and the electors are unlikely to elect any in October, especially if Mr. Trudeau campaigns actively.

What the by-elections most likely will show is the depths to which the hatred of this Government has reached.

outdoors

by Ron Reid - Federation of Ontario Naturalists

In the lawns and woods across Ontario, a deadly trap lies in wait for the unwary. Each summer, a few more connoisseurs of wild mushrooms fall victim to the dangers of eating one of the deadly Amanita family.

Among the poisonous plants of Canada, the mushroom named Amanita virosa, or Destroying Angel, is public enemy number one. Perhaps of its resemblance to common edible mushrooms, the Destroying Angel accounts for 95% of all fatal mushroom poisonings in North America. While the mushroom is mild-tasting and its consumption shows no ill effects for eight to twelve hours later, its danger after that is intense. Victims develop severe abdominal pains, sweating, and excessive thirst. Because the mushroom's poison has spread through the body before symptoms appear, 90% of those who eat the Destroying Angel die.

Fortunately, Amanita mushrooms are relatively easy to recognize. The Destroying Angel is pure white, with a limp, skirt-like ring or annulus around the stem. Its most distinctive feature is a volva, or death cup, which surrounds the base of the stem in a cup-like sheath. This death cup is often hidden beneath the soil, so it is essential to dig out any similar mushrooms and remove them carefully from the soil to check for this fragile warning sign.

Despite the dangers involved with families such as the Amanitas and several others, only 6% of Canada's mushrooms are actually poisonous. Many of the remainder are delicious, and some kinds such as the morels are very distinctive. With a good handbook for mushroom identification, possibly aided by one of the popular courses on mushroom identification, your skills in avoiding the dangerous species should generally develop to the point of confidence.

The Seawind flies

"We are extremely pleased. The results of the initial tests have completely exceeded our expectations...we're just very pleased with what we have here."

The words are those of Len Creelman following a weekend of test flights of an aircraft created by himself and his brother Rodger. The aircraft, the Seawind, flew for the first time August 23 at 2:30 p.m. at the Bracebridge airport.

This past weekend test pilot Murray Morgan put the aircraft through two days of extensive tests.

"The tests this weekend went very well," Creelman commented. "The pilot stalled the aircraft and reported that it responded well to the test."

The reaction of an airplane to a stall is important to pilots. A stall occurs when the aircraft reaches a speed which is too slow for the wind passing over and under the wings to provide the support necessary to keep it aloft.

"Some aircraft will nose down when they reach stall speed," Morgan explained Saturday on the airport runway. "Others tip to the left or right going into a downward spiral. In some cases the craft gives the pilot ample warning that he is approaching stall speed either by vibration or by sluggish controls. In some cases the aircraft gives no warning...it all depends on the design."

Creelman noted the stall tests went well. The aircraft stalls at a lower speed than first expected and when the plane comes within ten miles per hour of stall speed there was ample indication that the craft is approaching the critical speed.

Other tests were carried out during the weekend. After each flight the test pilot reported his results to Creelman and the ground crew explaining what he felt was wrong and suggesting ways to remedy the problem. Then the crew would swarm over the aircraft making the necessary changes and then it was back into the air to assess the changes and try additional tests. The excellent weather Saturday and Sunday evening allowed the pilot to carry out a large number of test flights. With each one, the confidence in the craft grew.

From Ottawa

Murray Morgan is a resident of Ottawa where he is employed in aeronautical research with the National Research Council. He describes his work as attempting to improve on proven techniques and designs. "The specifications, for example, for helicopters, were written 25 years ago. Technologically and aeronautically there have been many advances in that time. We are attempting to update those 25 year old standards using the new knowledge that has been acquired."

"This is the first time, however, that I've had an opportunity to test fly a totally new aircraft. It is a pleasure not usually given to many pilots," Morgan said.

Morgan admits that the first flight in August and the flights on the weekend were somewhat nerve-wracking. "It's a bit frightening to take an aircraft up for the first time." However he noted there is an exhilaration engine, the propeller and the instruments." He estimates that a home builder should be able to put the craft in the air for approximately $25,000 to $30,000. Construction time is estimated at 1000 hours.

Len is obviously pleased with the success of the test flights and the aircraft's design. The successful flights are that much more rewarding since an earlier attempt to fly a prototype ended in a crash landing on a lake near Haliburton.

"The aircraft is stable, looks great, will be fast-travelling at 60 miles per hour cruising speed, is amphibian, has no 'funny' characteristics, is economical involved with the first flight as well.

The pilot is full of praise for the Seawind. "There is no equivalent aircraft in Canada or the northern United States," he commented. "I think it's going to be a good aircraft. I'm sure it will have a market."

To sell for $17,000

The Creelmans plan to market the aircraft as a kit which buyers will put together themselves following the instructions which will accompany the parts. Len Creelman says the kit should retail for about $17,000 (Canadian). "That will include everything except the to fly and has four seats." Len lists the advantages of the aircraft with pride.

The test flights at the Bracebridge airport are now completed and the amphibian testing is expected to take place this week. Taxiing and handling characteristics will be tested on a local lake and the aircraft will be brought "up on step" to determine how the hull of the craft reacts to the water. (Up on step is the critical stage reached by an amphibian aircraft as it moves quickly through the water. The lift provided by the wind passing under the wings is in opposition to the "grip" the water retains on the hull of the craft.)

Following the test on the water, the aircraft will be shipped to Ottawa where flight tests can be carried out daily and adjustments made as required. Len Creelman expects the Ottawa testing to last about a month. It will be another month following the last test that the aircraft will be ready for production.

"We are aiming to begin construction of the first kit early in the new year," Creelman commented. He expects the first kits may take up to three weeks to produce each one. However as the staff become familiar with the procedure, he estimates the production time can eventually be reduced to ten days.

At the moment he is looking for space in which the production can proceed. "We will definitely be building the kits in Haliburton," he commented, "although it may be sometime before we can build a plant of our own."

The designer says he has received approximately 150 inquiries about the Seawind since the idea was first made public a number of years ago. Some 40 of those are considered to be serious inquiries from potential buyers of the kit.

Creelman plans to give details of the aircraft's test flight successes in the near future to a number of flight magazines. He expects this will further stimulate interest in the Seawind.

For the moment, however, he, his brother and their staff are enjoying the exhilaration of seeing a project on which they have worked for so long, finally take to the air.

from the chamber

by Bob Stinson

Labour Day weekend traditionally signals the end of another busy summer here in the Highlands and most of you heave a sigh of relief and look forward to slowing down a bit. It has been one of the problems in trying to build some "shoulder season" business that this attitude prevails and by the time everyone has caught their breath it's too late, we've missed the potential of what should be a lucrative fall business. We simply can't afford that luxury.

The Chamber, in an effort to turn this situation around, has been working during the summer to prepare two fall programs that should increase the number of visitors to the Highlands between now and Thanksgiving. The Harvest Festival and the Fall Bus Tours should provide a "lure" as well as provide a return for their operators. If the bus tours are successful the Chamber will see that they are run throughout the summer next year. If the Harvest Festival is successful we anticipate seeing it vastly expanded in the future years to become a very major draw in the fall season.

Both programs can benefit the community but they will need full community support in order to work. We need you, the members, talking about these attractions and promoting them to summer residents and visitors. Offer to pick up tickets or passports for them and include them in promotional 'packages'. Let's not stop for a breath yet - there will be plenty of time for that after Thanksgiving.

Bug those radio stations

The 'Haliburton Highlands Weather Reports' are still being prepared and put on tape by Elgin Stouffer. They are available on a toll-free line to all radio and T.V. stations so that they may keep their listeners informed first hand on conditions here in the Highlands. Some radio stations have used the tapes from time to time but most are not doing so consistently. (other than CKLY in Lindsay) This is not only valuable exposure for our area but the information should be very valuable to many of our potential visitors and cottagers when planning their trips here.

These stations tend to "test the waters" when they put such things on the air. If they play them and there is no reaction they will then withdraw them to see if there are any complaints. It is therefore important to let those who are playing our Weather Report tapes know that we appreciate hearing that sort of information, and those who aren't should be asked why not.

The following is a list of the stations that have so far provided some air time. Tell them you want to hear more and contact others to tell them their competition is playing it. Get your friends, relatives and customers to do the same:

Highlander of the Year selected

The Board of Directors met last week and faced the very difficult decision of selecting this year's Highlander of the Year from amongst the nine very deserving candidates that were nominated. A decision was made, but you won't find out the winner by reading about it here. All members of the board have been sworn to secrecy until October 20 when the presentation will be made at the annual meeting.

Watch for details shortly on our annual meeting day. It will feature a full day of workshops and panel discussions and the Honourable Reuben Baetz, Minister of Tourism and Recreation as the guest speaker at the evening banquet.

Election fever

As we look towards the elections in November, which for the first time will elect our municipal politicians for a three year term, there is growing concern over the apparent abdication of some of our more seasoned leaders in the county. Indications are that they are leaving the municipal scene having been discouraged by the petty nit picking, and haggling they have been faced with at the county level. If this situation cannot be resolved we will be entering a new era, as a full fledged county, having discarded the "provisional" from the county name, with many new faces on county council. They will be attempting to fill some very large shoes and no doubt will be faced with the same frustrations that drove their predecessors from office.

SENIORS... Ontario Property Tax Grant Applications.

Ontario Tax Grants for Seniors is a program designed to help offset municipal, school and retail sales taxes and home heating costs for Ontario residents 65 and over. The Property Tax Grant portion, of up to $500 per household, is provided in two instalments annually. The first instalment of the 1982 grant, based on 1981 applications, was mailed in the spring.

The Ministry of Revenue has just completed the mailing of Property Tax Grant applications which seniors must complete in order to qualify for the final instalment of this grant.

If you received a 1982 Interim Grant, you will receive an application.

TAKE CARE TO COMPLETE YOUR APPLICATION ACCURATELY.

Take a few extra minutes to fill out your application and then check it again for accuracy. This makes it much easier for the Ministry to process your form and get your cheque to you. In particular, you should remember the following:

- Fill in your taxes or rent for the entire year;
- Sign your application. Spouses 65 or over should also sign;
- If your marital status or address has changed, fill out the appropriate section on the application.

The Ministry will begin mailing Property Tax Grant cheques in early November and continue to do so on a regular basis.

Some points to remember

- If you have not received an application within 14 days and believe you are eligible for the Property Tax Grant, please contact the Ministry.
- Those seniors who reach the age of 65 between July and December will receive their application early in 1983.
- Those seniors who reach the age of 65 in 1982 will receive a grant for the full year once they return the application to the Ministry.
- If you moved permanently into Ontario during 1982, your grant is based on the time you resided in Ontario. If you have not received an application, please contact the Ministry.
- Seniors who are not eligible for federal Old Age Security but who have previously established eligibility for the Property Tax Grant will also receive an application. If you reside in a tax-exempt property such as a chronic care facility, a home for the aged or a similar institution, you are not eligible for the grant. However, if you move into a tax-exempt property during 1982, you are eligible for a Property Tax Grant based on your rent or property taxes prior to your move.

Sales Tax Grants

On December 3, the Ministry of Revenue will mail a $50 Sales Tax Grant cheque to all Ontario seniors. No application is necessary for this grant.

Care needed with these wild plants - they're poisonous

By late summer, many of our wild plants have come into fruit, often with useful and tasty results. But if you plan to add a little variety to your diet by experimenting with edible wild plants, a few words of caution are in order. Even some relatively common and attractive plants can result in poisonings that are extremely uncomfortable, or sometimes fatal.

For example, both the seeds and wilted leaves of Canada yew, or ground hemlock, contain a poisonous alkaloid that can cause death due to respiratory failure. The red pulpy berries of this low-spreading evergreen are attractive to children, and yew leaves have sometimes been mistaken for eastern hemlock, which makes a pleasant tea.

Colourful berries can often lead to poisoning, since they attract the appetite of curious youngsters. The red berries of lilly-of-the-valley, a common garden plant, are poisonous. So are the red or white baneberries, often known as doll's eyes, which are a common inhabitant of deciduous woods. The red clusters of berries on deadly nightshade have low toxicity for adults, but are a serious danger to children.

Other parts of plants can also be poisonous. The horse-chestnut, a commonly-planted shade tree, has poisonous nuts. Similarly, the pea-like pods of the black locust tree are inedible. All parts of the water hemlock, a large member of the parsley family, are poisonous. So are all parts of the Jack-in-the-pulpit, including the corm-like roots.

If you or your child accidentally swallow a plant or berry that causes a severe reaction, your first contact should be your local poison control centre, which is listed prominently in the front of your phone book. Take a plant specimen to the hospital with you if you can. But the first line of defence against accidental poisoning is always a healthy respect for plants you don't know well.

If your car's out of shape you get rid of it, right? What if your body's out of shape?

New law requires student immunization

During this spring session of the Provincial Legislature an important Act was passed, which will have a great and positive effect on the health of not only many individual children but of the general public as well. This Bill is called The Immunization of School Pupils Act.

In a nutshell, this Act requires that all pupils under the age of eighteen attending school in Ontario must be immunized against six communicable diseases. All public, separate and private schools, both elementary and secondary, are included under this legislation.

The six diseases referred to are: Measles, Rubella (German measles), Mumps, Diphtheria, Tetanus (lockjaw) and Poliomyelitis.

With these diseases is associated significant illness, serious complications and fatalities.

At present, it is estimated that approximately 20% of Ontario children are inadequately protected against these diseases. In the three counties served by the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit, the record is better. There are only about 6 to 7% of the students unprotected, but this figure should and must be improved. In 1980, over 11,000 cases of these diseases were reported in Ontario. With the poor reporting now practised, there were, in fact, many times that number.

These childhood diseases are not trivial and should be taken seriously.

Of particular concern is the dramatic increase in the occurrence of measles in Ontario in 1979 and 1980. Measles is often a severe disease, frequently complicated by middle ear infection or bronchopneumonia. Encephalitis occurs in approximately one of every one thousand cases, and survivors of this serious condition are often left mentally retarded because of permanent brain damage. Death occurs in one out of every one thousand reported cases. Measles is associated through a "slow virus" phenomenon with the onset years after the original infection, with a condition of the central nervous system somewhat similar to multiple sclerosis called subacute sclerosing panencephalitis. This is not common. Also, measles illness during pregnancy increases fetal risk. Measles can be all in all, a very bad actor.

In 1980 the incidence rate in Ontario for measles was 15 times that in the United States where there is a programme making immunization against measles a condition of school entry in all states, and of school attendance in most. Most cases of measles now occurring in the United States are imported through travellers or illegal alien entries. There is little indigenous measles left in that country.

Rubella, or German measles, is a common childhood disease that is often overlooked or misdiagnosed because of the mildness and short duration of the illness. The important consequences of rubella are the fetal anomalies that frequently result from primary infections in non-immune women in the early stages of pregnancy. These women usually are infected by children with rubella who have been in contact with them - mothers, aunts, sisters, nurses, teachers, baby-sitters and so on. Congenital rubella, if it does not cause fetal death, results in severe morbidity in the newborn. Some examples of this would be congenital heart disease, nerve deafness, cataracts and mental retardation.

Mumps has a low mortality. Nevertheless, meningo-encephalitis is a not uncommon complication with the possibility of permanent brain damage. Sterility or permanent nerve deafness may occur very rarely.

Diphtheria is now uncommon in Ontario but localized outbreaks continue to occur. Many of these are severe and 10% of respiratory diphtheria cases die.

Tetanus or Lockjaw, remains a constant and important health hazard. The tetanus organism is almost everywhere and there is always the possibility of lockjaw following any wound, major or minor, and this means there should be universal immunization regardless of age. Even with modern treatment, the mortality rate is 20 to 30%.

Poliomyelitis is rare now in Ontario but the wild virus circulates freely in many countries. At present there is a severe outbreak in Jamaica. With travel and tourism as rapid and widespread as it is nowadays, this disease could be imported at any time. The major complications of the disease are severe paralysis of all parts of the body. Polio has a high fatality rate.

The goals of this new legislation are simply to eliminate indigenous measles in the school population of Ontario; to improve the protection against and control all these diseases and to provide more effective measures for limiting and eliminating any outbreaks that may occur.

Beginning in September of this year, all children who are not adequately immunized against any of these diseases will be ordered to be suspended from school in the event of, or the reasonable likelihood of, an outbreak in the schools of the disease against which they are not protected.

Although the law is now in effect, children who are inadequately immunized will be allowed to attend until early in 1983. This enables them to have their immune status brought up to an adequate level. Early in 1983, those students who are not immunized adequately or not in the process of being so protected will be excluded from school attendance.

There are exceptions to this requirement. The grounds for such exemption are medical or religious. The first requires a certificate to that effect signed by a physician. The religious exemption certificate requires the parents to certify by signature that it is against the tenets of the religious denomination to which they belong to have their child vaccinated.

The immunizations may be done by the family physician in their office, or by the Health Unit Public Nurses in the schools. The vaccines are both safe and effective, and are provided to the physicians at no direct cost to them or the patients.

Early in the school year all parents of school attenders under the age of eighteen, for whom the records of the Health Unit do not show adequate immunization, will be sent a letter. This letter will ask that such proof be provided and outline the reasons for the necessity of this.

The Health Unit has the capability of reviewing the immune status of any school in its jurisdiction within an hour. In this way a list of the non-immune in any class or school can be quickly prepared and those students sent home in the event of an outbreak, or the likelihood of an outbreak. In this way it should be possible to limit the spread of these diseases very quickly and effectively.

The Immunization of School Pupils Act provides for the right to appeal any of these orders. That is, those of exclusion from school attendance or suspension during an outbreak. These appeals will be heard by the Health Facilities Appeal Board which operates under the Ambulance Act. However, the legislation makes it clear that the orders are in effect from such time as they are issued until the Appeal Board has made its decision.

This legislation has been studied carefully and endorsed by many highly knowledgeable and respected groups. These include the Canadian Paediatric Society, the National Advisory Committee on Immunization, the Provincial Advisory Committee on Immunization Procedures, the Society of Medical Officers of Health of Ontario and the Association of Ontario Boards of Health.

Program helps grain farmers

Ontario farmers growing corn, soybeans, white beans, winter wheat and barley have an opportunity to participate in a new stabilization program for the coming three years. The final date for applying is October 1, 1982.

A new 3-year program for each of these five grain crops has been developed by the Farm Income Stabilization Commission of Ontario. This plan is in essence a follow-up to the 3-year plan which expires this year.

The program establishes stabilization funds from which payments may be made to participating farmers in any year in which there are depressed market prices. These funds are created by cash deposits from the farmers to the extent of one-third of any possible pay-out to them. The other two-thirds of any pay-out is funded by the Government of Ontario. Thus, pay-outs are on the basis of $2.00 from the Province for each dollar paid from the grower's account.

The amount of any pay-out is limited by the Ontario support price. This price represents 95% of the previous 5 year average market price, as adjusted for changes in cash costs. The maximum Ontario support payment in any year will be the difference between 95% and 90% of that 5 year average market price.

A separate account is opened for each participating farmer, and for each crop which that farmer wishes to protect. Money in the account earns interest for the participating farmer, and any balance left at the end of the program (after the 1984 crop year) is returned to the farmer.

This new program is for the 3-year period covering crop years of 1982, 1983 and 1984. A farmer wishing to enrol in the program must stay in it for the duration of the plan, must file a registration form each year and must forward the required fees and other documents as requested by the Commission by specified dates.

The "production year" for different crops varies, depending on their time of harvest. For winter wheat it is

July 1 - June 30; for barley it is August 1 - July 31; and for corn, soybeans and white beans the year is September 1 - August 31.

Grains which are marketed during the production year qualify for any stabilization payment which may be declared by the Commission.

Brochures and application forms are being mailed to producers who have been participating in the Grain Stabilization Program. Other producers can obtain additional information and application forms from the agricultural office. The final date for any farmer to apply to participate in the stabilization program for the 1982 crop year is October 1, 1982.

$338,000 for winter works

The Victoria - Haliburton federal constituency has been allocated $338,000 in funds for winter works programs. The amount was announced last week by MP Bill Scott.

The money is based on a $200,000 grant received by all constituencies, plus an additional $138,000 since unemployment in the area exceeds 5%.

In addition to the winter works program, groups in the riding may be eligible for grants for youth and native peoples projects.

Application forms are available from the Canada Employment Centres. Applications must be received by September 30 with the earliest date for the projects to start set at October 9.

Country & Western singing personality Michael T. Wall, "The Singing Newfoundlander" recently visited the Haliburton Highlands. The singer who regularly appears at the Molly and Me Tavern in Toronto bills himself as a roving ambassador for Newfoundland. Michael is seen here with his five-year old daughter, Sarah-Anne.

Ambassadors play at Toronto 'Ex'

- by Wendy Laking -

Haliburton's own Dixieland Ambassadors performed last Thursday at the Centennial Bandshell at the CNE and if there was one thing we learned it was how important it is to be organized. Eight of us, our luggage, plus our instruments (including one drum set!) had to be shipped to each place we went and in ONE car. I thought I had problems getting instruments in my trunk - we had all our belongings crammed into Craig's station wagon - right to the roof! I was his rear-view mirror.

Two of our members started off with a reasonable amount of luggage for two days, but let these "country folks" loose in downtown Toronto and we were all carrying shopping bags filled with their fall wardrobe.

We took the TTC Wednesday night and treated ourselves to a super feast at the Whaler's Wharf from some of the money we earned over the summer. Our concert went really well, (although Mike had a little trouble with the mike) and our loyal fan-club was sitting in the front row (Our parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins, etc....!)

The weather was with us almost all the way and I had a hard time getting my new Haliburton friends to leave the hustle and bustle and the city smog.

To the members of the band, Cathi, Jenni, Craig, Mike, Shawn, Rick and Susan, I thank you for making me feel so welcome and including me in your summer. Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Woods and Diane (and Garfield) for being my 'adopted parents' and little sister for the summer.

I hate to go!

Here is another list of selections now available to you from the Minden Library.

Juvenile Fiction

Title: Beast. Author: Susan Meddaught.

This is a picture book with simple words, good pictures and with a text to suit the youngest reader.

Juvenile Non-Fiction

Title: Good Dogs of all Ages. Author: Wm. Cole.

88 poems in this book tell about good dogs of all ages - some serious, some amusing. There are different sections and some illustrations in black and white. There are 10 sections and we are sure the young person would enjoy reading or hearing these read to them.

Adult Fiction

Title: So Long As You Both Shall Live. Author: Ed McBain.

Detective Bert Kling was a very happy man. He had just married the very beautiful Augusta Blair, in an elegant ceremony with hundreds of their friends present. It was his wedding night; and Augusta was waiting for him now as soon as he got out of the shower. Smiling, he opened the door. She was gone.

Kling wasn't alarmed. He'd been warned at the reception. There was a quaint custom, he'd been told, of kidnapping the bride on her wedding night - usually not from her honeymoon suite, but the boys of the 87th Precinct were professionals. You could expect them to be inventive.

And then he noticed her coat. It was still on the rack. And the shoe, lying along on its side. And the smell, the sickeningly sweet smell ... of chloroform.

It was about that time that Kling got alarmed.

Adult Non-Fiction

Title: Doctor Norman

Bethune. Authors: Ted Allen and Sidney Gordon.

This biography is on Dr. Bethune's life from Gravenhurst to Asia. He won international fame, first as a thoracic surgeon but was also a painter, poet, soldier, teacher, and theorist. This man brought hope and inspiration not only to the people of Spain and China but to all of us.

spot the shot contest

Each week during the summer, we'll publish a photograph, like the one below, of a familiar scene in the Haliburton Highlands. All you have to do is identify the scene and you could win

$20 gift certificate

redeemable at either the Minden or Haliburton

Foodmaster.

The winner will be chosen by lot from all the correct entries received by the closing date. Entries can be dropped off at The Times office Minden, sent to Box 97, Minden or placed in the contest boxes at the Minden or Haliburton Red and White Foodmasters.

There will be a new contest each week, so keep your eyes peeled and try to spot the shot.

Thinking caps in place...this is an easy one...you could win $30...see details below in Winner's section...good luck!

— WINNER —

We did it again...no winner on contest number nine...a scene of Maple Lake. Rather than extend the number of contests again, we'll take the prize that was to be given out in contest number nine and split it between number ten and eleven. The winning entry for last week's photo and the one above will each receive a $30 gift voucher from Easton's. So dig out last week's newspaper and give it a close look. If, perchance, there are no correct answers in contests ten and eleven, a draw of all entries received for each contest will determine the winner.

Monitor will assist attendants in emergency situations

A new addition to the equipment carried in the Minden based ambulance should help the attendants in assessing the condition of patients, particularly in emergency situations.

An electronic blood pressure/pulse monitor was added to the vehicle's array of equipment last week following a donation made by the Minden Rotary Club. The organization donated the $350 required to purchase the monitor.

According to the ambulance supervisor, Rob Luke, the new piece of equipment will be of great assistance to the staff especially in noisy situations, such as accident scenes or when the ambulance is travelling on rough roads.

"Anyone who has studied first aid is aware that blood pressure and pulse rate are two important indicators of a patient's well-being," Luke pointed out. Normally the blood pressure is taken with the aid of an inflatable cuff and stethoscope. The attendant inflates the cuff on a patient's arm and listens with a stethoscope for the pulse.

"At an accident scene it can be particularly noisy, with traffic going by, rescue procedures taking place and general confusion," he commented. "Often it can be difficult to hear the pulse through the stethoscope."

Similar problems arise when an attendant attempts to take a patient's pulse, usually by taking the reading on the inside of the wrist. If the ambulance is moving at the time, the vibrations created by the road could make it difficult to get an accurate reading. In some instances the patients may be so weak that it is difficult to find the pulse at all, unless the vehicle is stopped.

This new machine eliminates these difficulties.

Rotary president Al Mayo, right, has his blood pressure reading taken by the new electronic monitor recently purchased by the Minden Ambulance Service. Attendant Richard Balas, left and Service supervisor Rob Luke demonstrated the new equipment.

A cuff is still wrapped around the patient's arm and inflated, but rather than having to listen to the pulse with a stethoscope, the blood pressure reading is displayed on digital indicators. The readings are available within ten seconds as the sensitive machine quickly analyses the information being received under the cuff.

A press of a button and the machine also gives the attendant the pulse rate. "The system is more accurate than using a stethoscope and it certainly is faster," Luke commented. "As well, the pulse indicator can help us identify heartbeat irregularities which can be vitally important in treating heart attack victims."

The machine is battery operated and can therefore be operated outside the ambulance. It is small and light and can easily be carried to an accident victim or into a home for use on the spot.

"The machine, we feel, is an important addition to the equipment we carry in the ambulance," Luke commented. "We've already made good use of it a number of times."

The Minden Ambulance Service had the machine on loan from the United States manufacturer for a couple of weeks prior to the Minden Rotary Club agreeing to donate the funds to cover its purchase.

Did you know?

Starting September 1, 1982, Haliburton County Home Support Services will feature a display of senior citizens' artwork in the Hall of the Drag Lake Municipal Building.

Stella Stinson, the convener of the new program, will accept paintings, petit-point, rug hooking, macrame, etc., to be included in a January show of Haliburton County seniors' hobbies.

Viewers interested in purchasing any of the articles should get in touch with the exhibitors directly. No commission is charged by the sponsoring organization.

The work of talented and versatile Jean Frazer of Gooderham is featured from now until December. Jean is a painter, a poet and a musician. Her Oils, watercolours and sketches are largely inspired by the beauty of the countryside in which she lives. 35 years ago, the Frazers, both keen naturalists, discovered the Highlands of Haliburton and bought a property which is now their retirement home. During her stay in New Toronto, Jean belonged to the Lakeshore Association of Artists and exhibited in Toronto. More recently, she taught a class of senior citizens in Gooderham.

around the county town

by Yvonne Guida

Yvonne Guida is on vacation at present and unable to keep in touch with the news from around the county. In place of her usual snippets we have pleasure in presenting one of her poems.

When I have sung my sonnets
And my heart can sing no more,
I will take my dreams of poetry
And lay them at your door.
The memories of golden days,
The glory of the sun,
The sadness of the wind and rain
And raindrops, one by one.
The spectre of a million stars
That grace the velvet night,
The promise of another day
At dawn's first pearly light.
The soft caress of falling snow
Against the breast of earth,
The joyous thrill of ecstasy
That comes with Spring's rebirth.
The trilling of the lark's sweet note,
And peace of even' song,
The memory of love's first kiss
That all too soon is gone.
These treasures I will bind with gold
With wondrous jewels afire,
And take them to the mountain-top
The summit of desire.
And there from my two weary hands
I'll cast them gleefully,
To blow and toss on winds of time
Through all eternity.

Yvonne

kid's korner

by Jean Lacey

Hi kids. Did you know, now is the time to pick the wild grasses and flowered weeds for drying? Pick a bunch of them, tie with string and hang upside down in a dark dry warm place for six to seven weeks. Then put them into a dry vase (no water) or corsage for your mother. Or use them at Thanksgiving for a table centre.

Q: What do you get when you cross a porcupine with a goat?

A: A kid that's hard to handle.

Q: What will happen if you eat yeast and shoe polish?

A: You'll rise and shine.

Father: Did you stir this soup with your left hand or your right hand?

Mother: My right hand, of course.

Father: I thought so, you should have used a spoon.

Pupil: I don't think I deserve a zero on this paper.

Teacher: Neither do I, but it's the lowest mark I can give you.

senior league

by Bert Harrison

Sunday morning we went to Minden Gospel Church, and heard the Barker-Wicks Trio in music and in song. Then Sunday night we were truly blessed to hear them again here at Hyland Crest. They played and sang the good old hymns like "My hope is built on nothing less, than Jesus' blood and righteousness". It was nice to have them as our special guests.

We have a lady, we won't mention her name, but it should be recorded in The Hall of Fame. She has been a non-alcoholic for seven years for which she won a reward. Don't you think this is really some record.

Tuesday morning Rev. John James from Haliburton United Church came. Sometimes we know who will come, but we are not certain. He held a nice service here at Hyland Crest. He took for his text, "God goes first, and always knows best." And on this August last day, we thank Mrs. Taylor for coming to play!

The Fearrey's came Tuesday night to play and sing. Everett is having real bad luck. He broke a mandolin string.

We didn't know Sidney Brown was an artist. We sure got a surprise. He showed us a painting that really would take first prize.

Tuesday afternoon was bingo. Ted Carr won a whole dollar and twenty-five cents. I wanted to borrow some of his money, but he said he never lent.

Well, the holiday is over, children back to school, where they learn their ABC's - also the Golden Rule.

Wednesday night was games night. We got badly beaten. Our opponents beat us fair and square, and didn't do no cheating.

Thursday afternoon the tea party was served by the Ladies of the Chapel at Harcourt. They not only brought a lovely lunch, but were real sports, and played and sang some good old hymns, and the children sang so fine. We thank them for the delicious lunch and such a jolly time.

We had no bingo Thursday night, no Fun and Fitness today. Doris is sick at home, and couldn't come in to play.

A real bad electric storm we had on Wednesday night, for several hours. We had no room light.

We welcome Sharin Gilligan as waitress in our dining room, serving us at dinner, also lunch at noon.

Friday afternoon Grace and Norma came, and entertained so fine. I think sometime we will take these ladies out to dine. After singing some good old hymns, Grace sang "My old Kentucky home," and read two poems, "If we were all alike," and "I would like to be an acrobat." To these two ladies, we take off our hats.

It is going to be a long weekend here at Hyland Crest. If we could get some more moonshine, the weather sure isn't the best.

Trudeau, riding a train, threw a ten dollar bill out the window. His seat-mate said, "Why did you do that?" Trudeau replied, "To make some Canadian happy." His seat-mate said, "Why don't you jump out yourself, and make all the Canadians happy?"

"Ask about the management and financial assistance available to help your small business..."

ALL those adjoining Parts of the sixty-six foot Original unopened Shoreline Allowance for Road along the shore of Gull Lake in front of Lot 18, in Concession 10, in the Township of Lutterworth, in the Provisional County of Haliburton, designated as Parts 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 on a Plan of Survey deposited in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of Haliburton (19) as Plan 19R-2662.

AND, in addition, to convey Parts 1 and 3 on Survey Plan 19R-2662 to the owner of the abutting Instrument Number 2119 AND to convey Part 2 on Survey Plan 19R-2662 to the owner of the abutting Instrument Number 95082 AND to convey Part 5 on Survey Plan 19R-2662 to the owner of the abutting Instrument Number 61979.

A copy of the Survey Plan 19R-2662 is attached to the proposed By-law and may be viewed at the Lutterworth Municipal Office during normal working hours.

AND TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that before passing of the said By-law at its meeting to be held at the time and place above-mentioned, the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Lutterworth shall then and there hear in person or by his or her counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his or her land will be prejudicially affected by the said By-law and who applies to be heard.

DATED at the Township of Lutterworth this 18th day of AUGUST, 1982.

Mr. Wayne D. Hughes,
Clerk-Treasurer,
P.O. Box 176,
MINDEN, Ontario.

IN MEMORIAM

MILES: In loving memory of James Miles who passed away September 4, 1979.

To write how much we miss you
But it would take the rest of our lives
To forget the day we lost you.

Sadly missed and always remembered by Mother Irene Miles and Grandmother Katharine Daniel

MILES: In loving memory of my dear husband James, who passed away September 4, 1979.

God looked around his garden
And found an empty space.
He then looked down upon this earth
And saw your tired face.

Forever remembered by his wife Berdena Miles
& children

STINSON: In deep and lasting memory of Leonard Victor Stinson who died September 11, 1978.

We cannot halt the hands of time,
Or live again the past.
But within our hearts are memories
That will forever last.
Always remembered
Doreen, Rosemary & Bonnie
